Disciplinary Information

On April 5, 2016, the United States Securities and Exchange Commission (“SEC”) determined that Alexander Bastron had failed to adequately supervise an individual during a period from December 2009 through June of 2010, resulting in said individual misappropriating financial planning fees from advisory clients. The SEC determined that Mr. Bastron violated Section 203(c)(6) of the Investment Advisers Act by failing to implement a heightened supervision plan for the individual in question.

As a result of this determination, the SEC issued an order requiring that Mr. Bastron pay a fine and be suspended from any supervisory capacity until after April 17, 2017. The events occurred during Mr. Bastron's employment as a Regional Director with Cambridge Investment Research.

Other Business Activities

Alexander R. Bastron is also independently licensed to sell insurance products in various states and has the authority to offer insurance products. He may be entitled to receive commissions and service fees directly from each insurance company. Mr. Bastron spends approximately 5% of his time working in these various capacities.

A conflict of interest exists in that Mr. Bastron may be compensated for the sale of such products in addition to fees charged for advisory services, which creates an incentive to recommend those products based on compensation received rather than on the best interests of the client. Compensation may be in the form of cash compensation or non-cash rewards such as consulting, publications and conferences on practice management, information technology, business succession, regulatory compliance and marketing.

Northstar seeks to ensure that all recommendations are made in the best interest of the client, regardless of additional compensation made. Associates are required to disclose conflicts of interest when they exist and remind you that they may purchase any recommended product from other representatives or agents not associated with Northstar.

Additional Compensation

Mr. Baston receives no additional compensation from non-client for advisory services provided.
